

Desktop Publishing Exercise Guidelines

Quick, think of your latest favourite song.

Now think of your latest favourite performer or group.

Ever thought about what it would be like to be a part of a musical group as they make their way to the big time?

Well, we would like you to think about it because that's the role we want you to play in these activities. Imagine that you are friends with a talented, young and undiscovered musical group. The name, musical style, history and everything about this group is up to you. It should be since you are the one doing a lot of work to help them make it. While the group is great with the music side of things they need your talents to help with promotion. The challenging, but essential work, of getting the music seen and heard. Your job is to use your considerable creativity and desktop publishing skills to complete each of the activities in this module

Make sure you read all of the information on each activity. Combine your current knowledge and skills with what you learn in the Skills, Design and Glossary section to create a finished product that you and your musical group can be proud of.

Since you are creating products that are going to set the impression for your musical group remember that things like spelling and grammar count. It's always a good idea to have someone proof read your work.

Here's a Tip!

We want you to use your own creativity and imagination on these activities but we also realize that it helps to have examples to follow. We encourage you to search the web for inspiration. An easy way to do this is to type the activity name (i.e. letterhead) into the Google search engine. Once the results arrive, click on Images at the top of the page to see many visual examples of what your activity can look like.
